PAWS FOR THOUGHT ON TIGERS

The declining numbers of wild tigers has prompted experts from a local wildlife park to enter the debate on how to protect the magnificent creatures. FULL STORY - SEE PAGE 5

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

HOPES ex-Kent cricket star Hartley Alleyne will avoid being deported have been raised after Home Office chiefs finally agreed to review his case.

The Barbados-born former West Indies cricketer has an English wife, two young sons and a 24-year-old daughter living in the country he has called home for 29 years.

But the Home Office rejected his claims earlier this year for a work permit, saying he did not hold suitable qualifications.

The decision provoked widespread public outcry, prompting Canterbury MP Julian Brazier to call for a meeting with Home Office minister Liam Byrne last month.

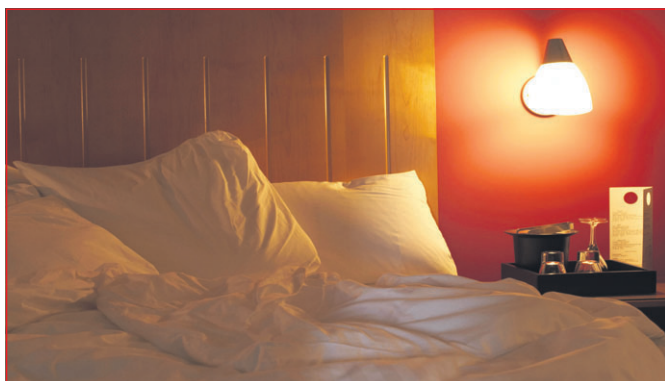

Following that meeting, the MP has now received a response which will bring cheer to Mr Alleyne's many friends and fans.

In a letter to Mr Brazier, Mr Byrne wrote: "In the light of the particular circumstances of this case, a decision has now been made to review Mr Alleyne's case with regard to his family and private life in the United Kingdom."

Mr Alleyne's problems began in May when the Home Office said his experience did not equate to the two A-levels required for a work permit. Although he achieved the qualifications in the summer, the Government maintained that because his job description did not require that level of qualification, he was still ineligible to stay.

Two appeals over the decision have already been turned down, and as a result Mr Alleyne has lost his job at St Edmund's School where he worked as a cricket coach.

Mr Brazier said: "I welcome the fact that they are reviewing the case again. I will continue to press for a successful outcome for this most deserving man."

Artist says farewell to iconic bear

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

THE ARTIST who has brought to life one of the world's most famous bears will be in Canterbury on Saturday to bid farewell to Nutwood – and Canterbury's – favourite son.

For more than 30 years John Harrold has been illustrating Rupert Bear but bows out with this year's annual.

And he will be signing copies of the book as the highlight of the Canterbury Rupert Bear Day on Saturday at the Museum of Canterbury in Stour Street.

Mr Harrold started work on Rupert in 1972 and has drawn the covers and end-papers of the annuals since 1978.

A busy day is expected by museum staff as an army of fans descends on the city where Rupert was first created by artist Mary Tourtel in 1920.

Tourtel was born in Canterbury and trained as an artist at the city's Sidney Cooper School of Art. In his original incarnation, Rupert was first created as a short cartoon strip in the Daily Express on November 8, 1920.

Through the years a number of friends were introduced including Bill Badger, Algy Pug and Edward Trunk. He also had a foe called Raggety, a creature made entirely from twigs.

Most of the stories are set in Rupert's fictional home, Nutwood, although Rupert and friends also go on numerous journeys in a variety of magical vehicles.

Canterbury's number one bear was updated for the new millennium in 2006 with a modern take on the character in a move which upset traditionalists.

Entertainment Rights made an agreement with the Daily Express, buying the rights to use both the traditional white Rupert character as well as developing a new take on the long-running children's favourite.

Controversial new Rupert acquired a tan and trainers, and his own animated series on TV channel Five, called Rupert – Follow the Magic. A spin-off magazine starring the new Rupert, The Rupert Bear Magazine, features the bear helping children solve environmentally-themed puzzles.

Now both Rupert, and his modern alter ego, live side by side in parallel Nutwood. The original Rupert still has his own annuals and merchandise, while 'new' Rupert deals with the television side.

The Museum of Canterbury is home to the official Rupert Bear Museum to mark the link with Mary Tourtel, and it celebrates Rupert's birthday each year on the Saturday nearest to 8 November.

Jewellery shop raid by masked robbers

HALLOWEEN mask-clad robbers have hit a jeweller's shop in Canterbury knocking out a young man with a claw hammer in the attack.

The raid happened last week in broad daylight, when two men went in to upmarket jewellers Mappin and Webb in Rose Lane and demanded the contents of several display cabinets.

The men dashed from the shop just after 3.30pm, after attacking a young man who tried to raise the alarm. They jumped into a Peugeot in Marlowe Avenue and sped off.

Milkshake shop is causing a real stir

Owner aiming to mix it up in drinks market

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

FROM Toblerone to Tic Tacs, the Shake Shed – Canterbury's newest drinks store – will mix your favourite milkshake no matter how bizarre the ingredients.

The wacky drinks shop offers more than 100 different flavours covering chocolate bars, cakes, biscuits and sweets, including jelly baby and blueberry muffin varieties.

And the city seems to have a sweet tooth as within a week of opening, customers are already coming back for more.

Owner Jenna White runs the shop in Sun Street with her fiancé Chris Newham, an assistant manager, and seven part-time staff.

She said: "We've only been open a week and already we've got regulars. People come in and say I'll have to come back and try that one next."

"It's really about offering people a choice. For people who want a drink made of their

RECIPE FOR SUCCESS: Shake Shed has more than 100 different flavours for customers to choose from favourite chocolate bar, we have a huge range, including cakes. We do ginger cake, battenburg and the doughnut milkshakes are lovely."

The already lengthy menu is further embellished with off-the-cuff concoctions dreamed up by imaginative staff.

The chocolate bars, cakes, biscuits and bags of sweets are on display at the shop; all you have to do is pick your favourite and watch it blend.

Miss White admits her own favourite is a Dime Bar shake, but said customers have their own preferences.

She said: "Ferrero Roche shakes are very popular at the moment, and people are going crazy for drinks made from Wispa chocolate bars."

The idea for the unique business came from similar ventures elsewhere, and the desire to do something different after the hectic high pressure world of PR and marketing.

She said: "It just got to the stage where we wanted to be our own bosses, and really enjoy what we were doing. We saw a milkshake shop in the West Country and thought that's a great idea, we could develop that."

The Shake Shed also offers smoothies for more health conscious customers, as well as hot shakes, cakes and coffee.

To celebrate its official opening on Saturday, Shake Shed cups will be handed out around the city, allowing people to claim a free regular milkshake.

Resurfacing to close road

MOTORISTS planning to use the London-bound Thanet Way between Whitstable and Faversham face a headache this weekend as the road will shut for essential repairs.

Resurfacing work and the installation of extra drains to clear surface water on the busy stretch of the A290 between Clapham Hill, Whitstable, and Staplestreet near Faversham, will completely close the west-bound carriageway on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

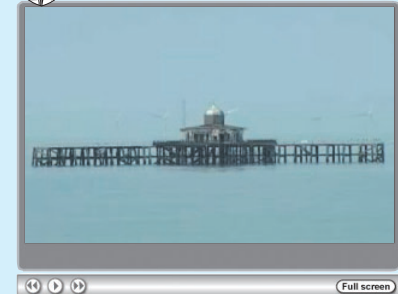

And the delays don't end there – as of Thursday, the fast lane on the coast-bound side will be shut for four weeks for drainage works in the central reservation.

To install the temporary safety barriers for this closure, the road will be fully closed from 11pm tonight until 5am Thursday.

Over the weekend, a diversion via the A290 Rough Common Road and the A2 will be in operation with local diversions in place.

Inside mind of a suicide bomber

SUICIDE bombing and the motivation that drives it is the subject of a conference at the University of Kent next week.

Organised by Dr Marcello Mollica, an expert on political martyrdom, the multi-faith and multi-disciplinary conference aims to understand why suicide bombing has become so pervasive around the world.

Dr Mollica said: "Through this conference we hope to gain some insight into suicide bombing and its causes, and how best to respond to it."

"This conference will provide an opportunity for scholars to make real contributions to the debate on how to tackle this problem that haunts everyone; holidaymakers, business men, security forces and ordinary members of the public."

"No one is untouched by it. It's a continual threat hanging over us all and affects us all."

The conference takes place on Saturday, November 17. It will be preceded by an academic workshop on Friday, November 16.

To book places contact Dr Mollica at the department of anthropology on m.mollica@kent.ac.uk.

Fine to take big slice from pizza shop's earnings

■ BY NICK AMES

A TAKEAWAY pizza firm has been fined more than £15,000 for flouting planning laws.

Memet Dari, who runs the Direct Pizza Company, and Reza and Suzanne Mousoli, owners of 109 Northgate where the firm is based, have been fined thousands for putting illuminated signs on the front of the Grade-II listed building without permission from the council.

All three failed to attend Canterbury Magistrates Court last Wednesday and, in their absence, were found guilty of breaching advertisement regulations and failing to provide council planning officers with information they had requested about the signs.

Canterbury council's head of development services, Kim Bennett, said: "Canterbury has some beautiful and historic buildings and it's important they are looked after."

"Advertising is perfectly acceptable, but signs must respond to the character of the building and the area in which they will be located."

Two of the three signs advertising the late-opening takeaway are illuminated, with one sticking out over the street.

The takeaway is in the Canterbury conservation area, where stricter than normal rules apply as to the appearance of buildings and advertising displays.

The court heard the signs had appeared on the shop without the necessary advertisement consent and efforts to get the signs removed ignored.

Requests for planning information about the new display, such as dimensions, colour and style, were also dismissed by the trio and the signs remained up.

As a result of the illegal signs, the Mousolis landed fines and costs totalling £8,800, while Dari clocked up a total of £6,800 in penalties.

Fishermen make another dangerous bomb haul

TWO fishermen with a strange knack of hauling up unexploded World War Two mines have caught another.

Phil Edwards and James Green from Whitstable landed their third piece of ordnance in eight weeks off the coast of Margate last Wednesday afternoon.

They caught it in their trawler and called the coastguards before letting the German parachute mine sink back down. The pair left a marker buoy for a team of Navy bomb disposal experts who detonated the device.

Chips are down for man charged with car smash

A MAN has been charged after a stolen car crashed into a fish and chip shop in Whitstable.

Benjamin Stowers, 23, of no fixed address has been charged with attempted burglary, aggravated vehicle taking, driving without insurance and having only a provisional licence.

The charges are connected to a smash in Canterbury Road at 3.20am on Friday, October 26, at the Seven Seas restaurant.

Pub rises to challenge of Sunday Telegraph critic

THE Granville in Lower Hadres has received rave reviews from The Sunday Telegraph's Stella magazine.

The popular Shepherd Neame pub was visited by restaurant critic and columnist Zoe Williams last month. She commended the kitchen's homemade ethic, and the bread, baked on site, was singled out for praise.

She wrote: "It tastes like a wonderful, huge savoury cake. I think we have taken a wrong turning and ended up in Roald Dahl's head. They are known for making their own almost-everything, here; it's worth it."

Real ales are name of the game at pub event

THE Woolpack in Chilham is serving up a blend of real ales and game dishes next week.

The pub is holding a Beer and Game evening next Thursday, November 15, as part of the British Association of Shooting and Conservation's Taste of Game week.

Pub manager Louise Grattan said: "We're aiming to show how flavoursome game dishes work exceptionally well with real ales."

The evening starts at 7.30pm and tickets for the four-course meal, including pheasant and deer, washed down with Kentish Ale, cost £15. Details on 01227 730351.

Timely publication on aerial battle over Kent
New book remembers 'The Few'

■ BY NICK AMES

AS thousands prepare to turn out to show their respects to those servicemen and women who gave their life in recent conflicts, a new book has been published about the Battle of Britain.

The aerial battle was waged in the skies above the county and resulted in extensive damage to Canterbury and the surrounding area.

Now the book The Heroes of Fighter Command: Kent, by Rupert Matthews, has been published in time for this weekend's Remembrance Sunday.

It tells the story of the band of pilots who Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill described as "The Few" and their achievement in beating off the might of the Nazi Luftwaffe in the summer of 1940 – and so halting the threat of an invasion of these shores by Adolf Hitler's forces.

Mr Matthews, whose father flew Blenheim bombers targeting the invasion forces during the battle, said: "I focused on Kent because it was the busiest county when it comes to the battle with Canterbury city centre coming under heavy attack in raids which were ordered as part of a strike on historic cities."

"What struck me most of all during my research was the way the pilots kept going, day after day, week after week, month after month."

Kent's squadrons first saw action on November 21 1939 when two pilots were on patrol over Folkestone flying Hurricane fighters.

They spotted a German Dornier on a reconnaissance mission and sent it crashing into the sea trailing smoke.

The Luftwaffe switched its attention to cities on the orders of Hitler after an RAF plane bombed Berlin – just at a time when the fighter bases and the command centres were on the verge of collapse.

Eventually the attackers suffered such severe losses that they stopped the daily raids.

• REMEMBRANCE services will be held around the district this Sunday. A service at Canterbury Cathedral starts at 10.50am, while the parade in Whitstable, organised by The Royal British Legion, leaves Market Cross at 10.30am culminating in a service and wreath laying ceremony at All Saints' Church at 11am. A second wreath will be laid at Linslade Cenotaph at 12.30pm. A Remembrance Day Parade in Herne Bay leaves William Street at 11am.

Save the village post office bus

FOLLOWING the cancellation of the post bus services in summer which isolated many villagers around Canterbury, a replacement bus service has been offered by Kent County Council.

The post bus formed a vital link for more than 20 villages in the district, providing older people and those who do not drive with a cheap and reliable service into Canterbury.

But the Post Office pulled funding for the service in the summer, and since then villagers have been looking for an alternative rural transport service.

Now Kent County Council has offered to maintain a mini-bus, in partnership with the parishes of the south east rural area of Canterbury, who would provide voluntary drivers and fuel.

Numerous options were raised at a meeting in Littlebourne Village Hall on November 1, and all the suggestions will now go to Keith Ferrin, KCC cabinet member responsible for transport.

Log-on to www.yourkenttv.co.uk to get the views of locals in Stodmarsh to how the loss of the post bus has impacted on their lives.

We sent a TV crew down to the village earlier this year to see why the vital service should be reinstated.

HARBOURING AMBITIONS: Plans for future of Whitstable harbour will be put to the council next month

Quay decision day looming for harbour

WHITSTABLE Harbour Board is to make its recommendation on Friday about the controversial proposals to redevelop the town's quay.

It is the last step before the decision goes to full council next month.

A final stakeholders meeting was held on Monday, where discussion revolved largely around ideas for incremental development, as opposed to an all-out redesign – the plan loathed by townspeople.

Some of the ideas at the meeting – attended by businesses and community groups with a particular interest in the harbour – included moving the town's museum to the harbour, with a conference centre above it, and a specialist marine retailer incorporating premium office space.

Realistic

Chairman of Whitstable Harbour Board, Micheal Dixey, who oversaw the meeting, said: "These ideas have got to generate income for the harbour because over the next 10 years we've got some major builds to do in terms of maintenance.

"Also, the harbour does not have the money to build these things; someone will have to pay for them, but everyone was remarkably realistic."

According to the board, maintaining the quay will cost £10 million over the next

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

25 years, and traditional industry does not generate that sort of money.

The cost of preserving the harbour – made from steel piling and wood which need constant maintenance – will run to millions over the next two decades. Whitstable Harbour Board say new business is key to safeguarding the iconic site for future generations.

The board will recommend one of the options – including not accepting any of the proposals – to the council this Friday, a choice which will be taken into account when the final decision is made by Canterbury council next month.

Despite the controversy, Mr Dixey is pleased the debate has mobilised the town to make its feelings clear.

He said: "This has got people engaged, and now I think we've turned it into something which could be very positive for Whitstable."

A well-organised opposition group presented a 9,000 signature petition to deputy council leader, Jeannie Law in September.

The three proposals submitted by Allied Land plc, Olympian Homes and Shepherd Neame include a supermarket, a pub and new homes, all of which have been met with fierce opposition from townspeople.

'Vicious circle' of life is driving big cats to edge

TIGER experts at wildlife park Howletts have entered the debate over protecting the last remaining wild tigers from extinction.

And they claim the only way to save them is from promoting sustainable tourism.

Adrian Harland, animal director at the park in Bekebourne – which is breeding rare Sumatran and Siberian tigers – entered the debate after it emerged the big cats were being driven to the edge by poachers and the loss of their natural habitat.

The Indian National Board of Wildlife last week informed the Prime Minister, Manmohan Singh, that the remaining tiger population could be as low as 1,300.

Mr Harland said: "People in India are suffering because the tigers don't have enough to eat, and so they are feeding on the farmer's livestock.

"In response, the farmers are poisoning the carcass and the tigers are then eating the poisoned meat. It's a vicious circle.

"Tourism provides an incentive for protecting the tigers. If the money from tourism went to the villagers then they would have significant incentives for not poaching them."

Heartless thieves steal half-century old bench

MEAN crooks have made off with a 50-year-old bench, sparking an appeal for information into its return.

The seat was stolen after half a century stood in the grounds of the Friends Meeting House in The Friars in Canterbury.

The heavy oak bench, inscribed with AJ Buckley JP, was taken at night on Sunday, October 28.

Anyone who saw the bench being taken or believe they have information is asked to call police on 01843 222178.

University and council bid to boost small businesses

COMPANIES in Canterbury can look forward to a boost following an agreement between the council and Christ Church University.

The memorandum of understanding will see both organisations working together to benefit small firms.

The council and university have agreed to organise joint training programmes as well as networking events.

They will also bid for external funding, especially via Europe, to help pay for the improvements.

The council's contribution to the partnership includes sponsoring the university's healthy business, growing business initiative, supporting the university business school's entrepreneurship programme, promoting graduate and undergraduate work placements.

Cycle routes connect to £50m lottery grant bid

A SHARE of a £50 million lottery grant to improve cycle routes around Whitstable and Herne Bay is up for grabs in a bidding war between four projects.

Canterbury council is urging people to get behind the bid, called Connect2, organised by Sustrans, the UK's leading sustainable transport charity.

Connect2 would see the development of a number of important cycle routes around the district's coastal towns.

These include work towards two new bridges over the railway for the Crab and Winkle Line, a coastal route between Reculver and Swalecliffe and cycle links to both Chestfield and Swalecliffe and Herne Bay railway stations.

It is one of four projects across the country competing for the money from the People's £50million Lottery Giveaway.

The TV poll, fronted by GMTV's Lorraine Kelly, takes place on ITV1 on Tuesday, December 4, with phone and online voting taking place the following weekend.

Connect2 is up against The Eden Project, Sherwood Forest Living Legends and a Black Country Urban Park for the £50 million in lottery cash.

If successful, Connect2 will fund 79 walking and cycling projects in the UK, including the Canterbury route.

Sustrans are the charity behind several national sustainable transport projects, including the national cycle network, safe routes to schools, bike it and travelsmart.

For more information about the charity, visit www.sustrans.org.uk.

QUESTION & ANSWER

DAN RICHARDS

Q How did you get into animated films?

A I first came up with the character of Windmill Boy in 2003, when I was coming up with ideas for a short university project. I spent the summer thinking up ideas for a film with my mum, discussing characters and concepts.

That summer my mum died of cancer very suddenly, which came as a real shock, but gave me the determination to make my film and dedicate it to her. Once I had finished the course at Canterbury Christ Church University, I decided I wanted to further my studies in animation, so went to the Bristol School of Animation, which was originally set up as a training school by Aardman. I was the only English student on the course and met some amazing animators from all over Europe, two of which worked on my film.

Q Who else have you worked with so far?

A When I finished the course I worked for Steve Allen as his assistant model-maker, producing toy merchandise, before going back to Bristol to work for a couple of animation model-making companies. In March 2005 I was lucky enough to get two weeks work experience working on Wallace and Gromit – Curse of the Were-Rabbit. I helped produce the fun fair which features at the end of the film. The experience really gave me the vision and scope of how to make a large animation project and was the catalyst for making my new film.

Q When did you start filming Windmill Boy?

A On returning to Canterbury, my old university heard about my work and offered me the chance to become the first ever animator-in-residence. This gave me the chance to use the university's equipment and facilities, so I could make my film. Steve Allen, who I had worked for offered to help me with the model-making side of the film and I had lots of students volunteering to help out on the project. The project took me 18 months to complete.

Q Did you take inspiration locally?

A My work in the Windmill Boy has been described as very earthy – rich browns and greens – and Faversham is such an inspiration. Just walking around at this time of year you see the amazing colours on the trees and the way everything is changing. I get inspiration from looking at a mouldy piece of wood, or the way the paint is peeling off a wall in an old house, and I think, 'I've got to have that in my next film'.

Q Does this make your work stand out?

A Lots of British films now take the urban high street as their backdrop. Every high street has a Boots, a HMV, a McDonald's, and this homogeneous urban landscape is definitely reflected in British films at the moment.

Trainspotting first opened people's eyes to this kind of landscape, and now British films seem to be either a costume drama or gritty crime. Of course artists gain inspiration from what they see around them, so there must be some truth in this view.

Q How easy is it to make films in Kent?

A Film-making in Britain is all about business. I approached Maidstone Studios about shooting a film there but it was all about money. In other countries film making is an art form, but that attitude just doesn't seem to exist here. That's why I'm making my next film in Poland.

Q What can be done to change that?

A I don't know about the politics of it, plasticine doesn't grow on trees down there or anything, but since Aardman, Bristol has become a hub for animators. There's a whole animation economy down there, with loads of animators, designers and money for animated films.

Kent, and particularly Canterbury, has so many talented, creative people. But the only way I think it could happen in Canterbury is if I do it myself, with my own money. It won't be after this next film, or the one after that, which I'll probably also shoot in Poland. But after that, when I've made more of a name for myself, we'll see.

MOVE OR IMPROVE?

Extending your home? Or considering a conservatory? With prices around £1000 per square metre for conservatories and even more for brick built extensions many people opt for creating additional living space outdoors. This has the added benefit currently of not increasing your council tax.

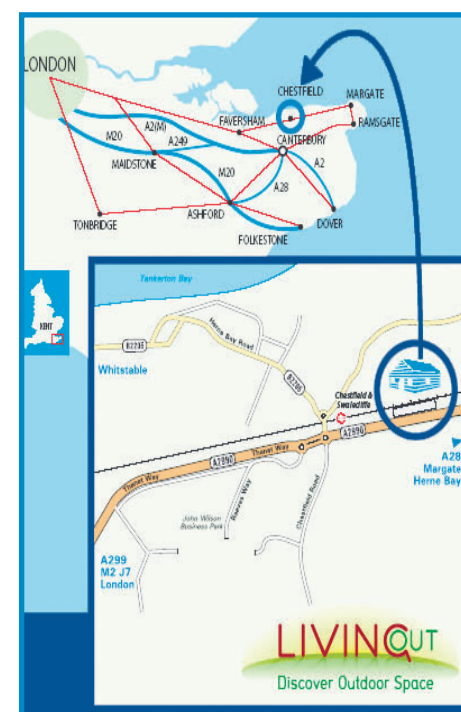

Living Out have a superb solution with their versatile range of interlocking log cabin type buildings. There are over 100 styles and variations of log cabins available and over 30 timber buildings on display at their site on the Thanet Way Whitstable, with prices starting from £120 a square metre installed it really is a very viable alternative to conventional home extensions with superb quality at a fraction of the price. In by far the majority of cases planning permission is not required! However you may wish to check with your local planning authority first.

Timber buildings have an impressive eco-footprint. With timber being a 12 times better insulator than concrete and the only truly renewable and sustainable building material it has been the world's most primary construction material over the centuries.

Having seen Living Out's impressive range of buildings on display and chatted to their friendly sales staff I can recommend a visit.

"We have sold log cabins for many purposes, including home gymnasiums, guest rooms, spa houses, summerhouses and many more. With home offices being particularly popular as more and more people are working from home but still require a quiet environment to concentrate" the sales manager of the Whitstable sales office reported. "People are amazed that a building can be completed within a few weeks of initial contact, and construction takes only a few days, when their alternatives, namely conservatories and extensions, can and will take months to complete at up to 10 times the price."

Living Out's experienced sales team can be reached on 01227 793717 seven days a week or you can email sales@living-out.co.uk. The sales office is based in the grounds of Johnson's Country Superstore, towards the coast on the main Thanet Way at Chestfield, approx 300yards after the Chestfield and Swalecliffe railway station.

Mountie in the county focuses on safe option

■ BY ED HILL

A TOP Mountie came to Kent this week to share the secret of how they always get their man.

Superintendent Ward Clapham said getting communities to embrace policing was the key to their success in making cities safe.

The senior Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer was the guest speaker at a community safety conference at Ashford International Hotel on Friday.

He told representatives from Kent police, Kent Fire and Rescue Service, Kent County Council and several other councils from across the county about the Mounties' philosophy in reducing crime.

Supt Clapham is the leader of the third largest force in Canada, which is based in Richmond, British Columbia.

Richmond is on one of the islands that make up part of the Greater Vancouver Regional District.

Mike Hill, KCC's community services chief, said: "This is an annual event that we put on in conjunction with the Kent police authority.

"Supt Clapham is recognised across the world as a specialist in this area. We were very interested in hearing what he had to tell us.

"He is very active in implementing the philosophy behind community policing at all levels. This is something they take very seriously in Canada."

The superintendent's area of E division is densely populated by Canadian standards.

The city has been subject to a large amount of immigration since the 1990s, and 50 per cent of its population come from an Asian background. The city has been recognised as one of the safest in Canada.

Mr Hill said: "We are very concerned with this area.

FEEL THE FORCE: Superintendent Ward Clapham of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police came to Kent to share his experiences

"The way forward is for communities to get involved in their own policing. It is up to all of us to help the police wherever we can. That was the theme of the conference.

"We want to find ways that all community organisations can work together, which includes the police, local councils, fire and rescue services and other groups."

Supt Clapham said: "I have been with the mounted police for 27 years. I am sure we can learn a lot from each other.

"For example, here in the UK you have much tougher legislation, allowing you to deal with high-risk offenders that I think we could adopt back home."

As part of his visit, Supt Clapham accompanied police community support officers and community wardens on their rounds in Meopham, near Gravesend.

He said: "The role of PCSOs and community wardens is something I am really keen to learn more about. We do not have anything like them in Canada.

"I think that there are times when it is not necessary to have a fully qualified officer dealing with problems. These people can engage more quickly with the people in their community."

The community safety unit in Ashford has been recognised as a service that could suffer cuts because of recent budget constraints on local councils from central government.

The sex criminals 'still a danger to our children'

KENT has the sixth highest number of sex offenders in the UK – according to figures published this week.

The county has a total of 49 people who have committed a serious sex offence such as rape or assault on a child.

All are classified as Level Three offenders – which means they have served a prison sentence but can never be considered safe.

They are mainly housed in hostels and their identities concealed.

The greatest number, 158, are resident in the Greater Manchester area.

Michele Elliott, director of children's charity Kidscape, said: "Level Three offenders in particular will continue to be a danger to children – and I bet none of the Government ministers or people working in this field have these offenders living next door to them."

Nationally, 1,201 offenders are housed. All are meant to be under the scrutiny of multi-agency public protection arrangements and social workers.

Kent has a better record when it comes to knife crime, ranking 15th in a nationwide survey of crime statistics.

Figures show that during April, May and June this year, 79 offences were reported in the county, whereas in London 1,580 knife crimes were recorded.

Gang culture put in the spotlight of police study

A STUDY into why young people choose to join gangs will be carried out by Kent police.

The online survey will be launched this month and look into lifestyle choices made by teenagers, as well as focus on their attitudes to peer pressure and social issues.

Police officers will also visit schools and talk to young people to raise awareness.

Three main types of groups are being studied – delinquent groups, organised gangs, and organised criminal networks.

Assistant Chief Constable Adrian Lepard said: "We need to understand this phenomenon, which is problematic in other areas of the country.

"By carrying out this research, we can take measures to try to prevent this problem appearing in Kent."

Extra support is more than a half-measure

THERE are 116 million unworn bras in the UK's underwear drawers, according to research by Playtex.

The lingerie company claims that, if laid end-to-end, they would stretch around the world twice. One of the main reasons for bras being discarded is a poor fit, with a fifth of women guessing at their size. In response to this Playtex has launched My Size, a range of bras available in half-sizes from A to D.

Backchat

with Dr. Christian Farthing at the Ideal Spine Centre, Canterbury

Did you get your £1,500 cheque?

In February 2007, BBC 4 televised a show called 'Dispatches' questioning where all the money goes in our NHS.

Statistics have shown us that the NHS spends an average of £1,500 per year on every man, woman and child in the UK. I don't know about you, but I have not seen my £1,500 for the past seven years since I moved from Australia to Canterbury in 2000. Upon asking many of my healthy patients, they haven't had £1,500 of services from the NHS either!

There is a National deficit in excess £3 billion and the problem is just getting worse. Most people close their eyes and think "that doesn't affect me". Well, the truth is, it does: either in taxes, treatment, mistakes or in injury. We have a problem that is so big, that most people leave it in the hands of the politicians. The solution is so obvious, but unfortunately for the politicians, it is an 'inconvenient truth'.

Just imagine if the government gave each and every one of us £1,500 each year to spend on our health. We would have a wellness explosion! More people could afford a gym membership, to go on health experiences like health days, buy fresh produce from their local farm shops instead of buying packet food and poor quality produce from mass produced food chains, buy water filters to be able to drink a clean water source, have regular preventative spine and health checkups and take more regular stress free holidays.

What would our town look like? Gyms filled, swimming pools, sauna and spa facilities would be in great demand, more wellness doctors teaching people about health and keeping you well, without the use of drugs and surgery!

Just imagine...

On the other side of town, hospital beds would be empty and the few people with life threatening diseases and emergencies would be treated quickly and efficiently. This would be a first...enough beds! Medical practices would be quiet and if you had a serious problem, you could easily get in on the day. Imagine not having to call first thing in the morning and hope for an appointment.

Just imagine...

There would be less people killed as a result of medical error because less people would go to the medical doctor because they would be kept well by seeing new age wellness doctors who are not interested in the profits of the pharmaceutical companies, but in the people and their families' wellbeing. The great principled medical specialists who save lives will do their jobs with less stress and make a lot less mistakes. People will be served as people and not as a number. You will be seen because you need it, not just to fulfil government targets.

Just imagine...

An average 300 people die each day due to errors made by medicine. That is what happens each and every day in the UK. That number has increased in the past five years to make medicine the leading cause of death in the UK after heart disease and cancer. The question is, if we keep using medicine as our health solution, how long will it take for it to be the No.1 preventable cause of death?

To add to an already serious problem, mistakes cost the NHS an additional £730 million each year! So, to get well and stay well, medicine may be good for an emergency (if you are lucky), but definitely no good for your future wellness. Speak to your Wellness Doctor first, not last!

During the month of November our family practice is providing free spine and posture health checks for families. The first 50 callers will also receive a copy of my most recent book to help understand the secrets to better health, naturally. We look forward to helping you.

Constructed on a solid aluminium base with a tough protective polycarbonate shroud, the coastal weather station is available in two colours. Wall mounted. Dimensions: 300x150mm. Weather forecasting with your coastal weather station.

TIME AND TIDE CLOCK

From sailing to sand castles, we all need to know what the tide is doing! Synchronised to the moon's daily cycle, the combination time and tide clock gives you an innovative and convenient guide to tides, whilst also providing conventional time keeping. The quartz driven tide hand will rotate every 12 hours and 25 minutes around the solid stainless steel fascia, giving you the state of the tide at a glance. This design also provides an indication of how many hours remain until high or low water. The black conventional clock hands work quite independently from the tide hand and can be adjusted using the small fly wheel on the back of the movement. The tide hand can be adjusted using the larger wheel, again found on the back of the movement.

Each week we get a mystery writer to air their views on living in and around Canterbury...

Don't go parking mad over space outside your house

WE have all heard of road rage and perhaps you assume the enraged must be behind the steering wheel. Not at all.

The anger can often be simmering in someone peering out from behind a net curtain. There is nothing like on-street parking to raise the ire of the neighbourhood.

OK, so late-night parties, noise, or dogs barking, get some people's goat. There was also a large amount of venom projected in our direction over the fence when we had a bonfire.

Nothing, however, compares to the number of complaints about vehicles parked in our street.

Did you know you should not park opposite or within 10 metres of a junction? After it was pointed out to us, we realised that we were obstructing the view of pedestrians and drivers at the junction, making it more dangerous. We were not being deliberately selfish, we simply had not realised. We are now more considerate – we do not park on street corners.

We do not live in a narrow street of terraced houses where you can imagine parking space is limited. We live in a wide street of detached houses, most of which have driveways and garages. The 'home is a castle' mentality in this area extends to thinking of the roadway as a moat to be defended against enemy invasion.

In fact, there are only two families in our street who have to resort to on-street parking – and we are one of them. Usually, we park outside our house, naturally. Occasionally, we have visitors, or when we return home our usual stop is obstructed, possibly by a delivery driver. What would you do? Perhaps park as close as you can to the destination? That is what we do.

On numerous occasions many neighbours in this street (both sides of the road) have requested that we refrain from parking outside their homes. I do not know if they have conferred on this, but if I am to keep them all happy then I would be parking in the next street (which I often do).

Visitors to the street have had notes left on their cars: "Please do not park outside of my house, it is inconvenient for us when we return home from work..." These requests have also been made face to face. My curtain-flickering neighbours rush out of their fortresses at the first sign of an offending motorist.

I have skimmed through the Highway Code and I can not find any reason that a road-worthy car that is covered by tax and insurance can not be parked along this street, so long as it is not near the junction, and not obstructing the dropped kerbs.

If any readers of this blog can identify with this roadside protection behaviour, I would urge them to let go; there is no sense in wasting energy over something that you can not control, ie who parks where on the road.

I have known of people in other areas (Whitstable) to have elaborate car manoeuvring rituals which involve parking an old car on the street all day to protect the coveted space outside a house while another car is in motion (at work). Meanwhile, the driveway is empty.

I will park outside your house if I want to.

Green Party warns of commuter misery

GREEN PARTY campaigners say they are concerned at delays in plans to improve commuter railway services – claiming that travellers face a decade of rail misery.

New carriages have been promised by rail companies and the infrastructure is set for improvement under a Government initiative to promote rail travel.

The move is part of an overall environmental strategy aimed at cutting down on carbon emissions.

But the latest official estimates say the Crossrail scheme – which will connect parts of London to the main regional network – will not be operational until 2017.

Thameslink services, which will link Kent's lines to the rest of the UK network, are also behind schedule and will not be ready until 2015, it is feared.

Rail bosses say the delays are necessary to avoid problems when the lines do become operational.

But Dr Hazel Dawe, of Kent Green Party, said the decisions should have been taken far earlier to bring services on line much more quickly.

She said: "Rising rail use and insufficient seats in the rush hour means Kent's rail commuters face a working decade of ever more unpleasant rail journey experiences."

"Given climate change and the imminent peaking of global oil supplies, Government investment in public transport alternatives to the private car should have occurred years ago."

Parents steer children into wrong exams

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

PUSHY parents suffering from 'academic snobbery' are leading thousands of children each year down the wrong educational path, according to research from industry expert group Edge.

The group's in-depth study found more than half of parents in Kent blindly nudge their youngsters towards taking A-levels and going on to university, despite knowing nothing about many of the other options available.

The Parents Panel – made up of more than 5,000 parents with children aged between 11 and 16 – uncovered a host of ill-informed traditional viewpoints, ingrained prejudices and much more besides.

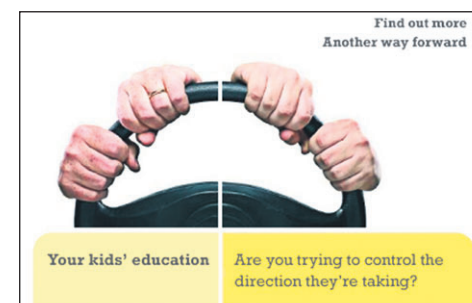

Almost half of those questioned said they would urge their child to take A-levels over equivalents such as BTEC qualifications, which only 18 per cent would consider at all.

Almost twice as many people – 35 per cent – went so far as to say that vocational courses, such as plumbing, motor mechanics and midwifery, were only for pupils who failed to shine in core subjects at school.

These out-of-date beliefs have had a devastating effect on the choices made by school-leavers.

More than one in five teenagers and young professionals told the group they had taken a wrong turn in their education and more than a third of those questioned laid the blame for that squarely at their parents' door.

Almost 40 per cent of youngsters said they would take A-levels partly because their parents wanted them to go to university.

CHOICES: There are other options than just A-levels

Garry Hawkes, chairman of Edge, said he wanted to use the Parents Panel findings to tackle the traditional bias against vocational qualifications, which currently results in too many people evaluating personal success by academic achievements.

This, he said, contributed to the feeling of 18 per cent of parents stating they would be disappointed if their child ended up in a practical career.

Mr Hawkes said: "We've been concerned for some time at how academic snobbery is influencing the lives of young people and our research shows the unfortunate truth that it has resulted in thousands of young people being directed down the wrong route every year, and therefore being turned off learning."

"Parents naturally want to do what's best for their child, but by their own admission they aren't armed with all the facts about the learning options available and this is costing some young people dearly. We're challenging all parents to stop thinking of academic qualifications as the only route to success."

Edge has launched a scheme called Another Way Forward for parents to consider other options – visit www.edge.co.uk for details.

Shock jocks at Invicta tell their deepest secrets

■ BY GARY WRIGHT

PSST! Want to hear a secret? Want to see your favourite radio presenters confess all?

Then make sure you tune in to top Kent commercial radio station Invicta FM next week – and then log on to our free broadband online TV channel www.yourkenttv.co.uk.

Bosses at the top station have ordered a host of its biggest names to confess their deepest secrets on camera in one of the most revealing stunts the station has ever staged.

And best of all, you can watch the likes of breakfast show king and queen James Heming and Ali Wheeler spill the beans on our website.

An insider at the hits-heavy radio station revealed: "In many cases listeners to the DJs' shows will, for the first time, be able to see the presenters and look into their eyes as they reveal some of their worst moments."

Shocking

"This is going to be surprising, embarrassing and shocking. It's a brilliant idea. The presenters have to tell fans something about themselves that they could never find out any other way. And the best part about it all is that it is all helping raise money for disadvantaged children."

Every confession will be broadcast on Yourkenttv.co.uk from next Monday. KOS Media, publishers of this newspaper and broadcasters of Yourkenttv – will give £1 to the Help a Kent Child for every person that registers that week.

Registration is completely free and not only will members be able to upload their own video clips, they will also receive e-editions of our newspapers completely free.

The station has adopted the charity which raises funds to help disadvantaged young people to fulfil dreams and ambitions they would never have thought possible.

There are many children in Kent who experience the negative effects of poverty, abuse, neglect, homelessness, violence, crime, illness and disability; who are carers for their own parents or who are indirect victims of domestic violence or suffer daily pain due to illness.

In this world of glamour and gain, these are the children Invicta FM and KOS Media want to help.

Nationwide battle to save post offices

MEDWAY council bosses were yesterday expected to kick-start a national campaign to save the country's post offices.

It is thought cabinet members would back plans to form an all-party delegation charged with spurring the Local Government Association to fight Royal Mail's proposed cutbacks.

More than 2,500 branches across the UK – including 58 in Kent – risk being axed in the first wave of savings as the postal service looks to turn its financial fortunes around.

The Medway council leader has already voiced his concerns over the proposals, writing to Royal Mail last month to register his objection.

Cllr Rodney Chambers wrote: "The proposals are particularly ill-thought given that Medway's population is set to grow by 50,000 during the next 10 years, with a resultant requirement for greater access to post office services, not less."

The Royal Mail's six week consultation period on their proposals ends on Monday.

Breakfast show presenters James and Ali were the first to be caught by our camera crew. Ali said: "I took a deep breath and just let it all come out."

Next the camera team cornered daytime presenter Claire Lawson, who admitted her worst moment.

Claire, who is on air every weekday between 10am and 2pm, said: "It was a shock to be confronted, but I realised I had no choice. I'm not sure what the listeners will make of it!"

Afternoon show presenter Andy Walker initially refused to reveal anything more about himself, but as station bosses put their foot down the truth finally came out.

"I just hope my mum doesn't see it," he said.

Drivetime presenter Neil Kefford was prepared and he just told the truth.

"There was no other way," he said.

Evening presenter Stephen Sullivan almost escaped, but no-one could be left out and he too was forced to reveal all.

So get ready for a week of surprises and a few red faces too – and for once you'll be able to see the fear in their eyes!

From a life-long love of silent movies, Paul Merton is now sharing his passion of early comedy in a compelling new live show

Clowning around

PAUL MERTON'S SILENT CLOWNS

Friday, November 16
Assembly Hall Theatre,
Tunbridge Wells

■ BY JAMES RAMPTON

SILENCE is golden, according to Paul Merton, and he wants to share his love of mute clowns with audiences in Kent.

After 17 years as a team captain on the hugely popular panel show Have I Got News For You, Merton has mastered the art of comic chat. But what first ignited his love of comedy?

Merton, 50, gives an instant reply; silent movies.

"It all goes back to when I was 14," recalls the comic. "I went to the local cinema to see The General, Buster Keaton's classic 1927 silent film, which was accompanied by a live piano player. Even though the movie was at that point 50 years old, I was amazed by the power it still possessed. 'Wow,' I thought, 'how on earth did he do that?' I came out of the cinema walking on air."

And so a lifelong love affair with silent movies was born.

That relationship has now come to fruition with Paul Merton's Silent Clowns, a compelling new live show, during which Merton, an acknowledged expert, will screen extracts from the best silent comedians in some of their funniest films.

In the second half of the show, Paul will introduce a screening of Harold Lloyd's deathless silent masterpiece, Safety Last!. The film delivers a marvellously engaging combination of thrills and laughs which is as potent today as it was when the movie was first released in 1923. Perhaps the most stunning aspect of the movie is that it contains not a single special effect.

The screening of Safety Last! will be accompanied by pianist Neil Brand, who has gained worldwide renown over the past 25 years for his dazzling, virtuoso performances at silent movies at the NFT and at film festivals across the globe.

Audiences today are astonished by the bravery of the silent movie stars who did all their own stunts. The era was a health and safety nightmare and Merton is certain the likes of Keaton and Lloyd would not be allowed to make films today.

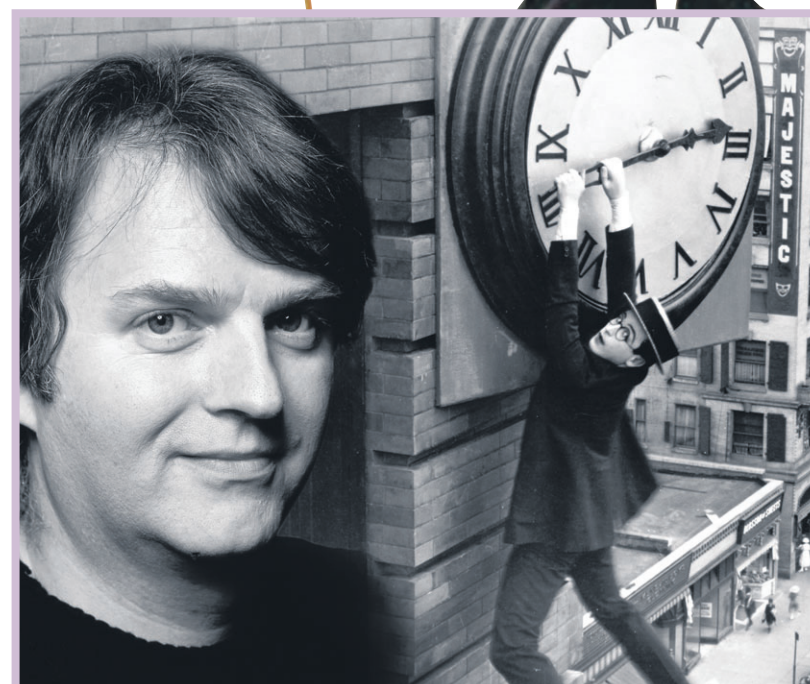

"But that only adds to their brilliance," he insists. "Look at that most famous stunt in Steamboat Bill Jr, where the house falls on Keaton and he is saved by standing in the space left by the window. He was unbelievably brave."

Merton's love of silent movies has in fact already manifested itself in his own wordless film, The Suicidal Dog, and he would love to direct again.

"I think about making films all the time," he concludes. "It's what I'd love to do above all else, but at the moment I'm too busy. However, if everything else stopped, then I could really concentrate on directing a movie. I really appreciate the success I've had, but I'd swap it all if I could direct one really good, intelligent movie that didn't treat its audience like morons and still worked in twenty years time."

Paul Merton's Silent Clowns starts at 8pm and tickets cost £14.50. To book, call 01892 530613/532072 or visit the website at www.assemblyhall-theatre.co.uk.

THE corridors of Canterbury's Marlowe Theatre have become a more interesting place, thanks to the work of local artists.

Whitstable-based Sadie Hennessey (pictured) has become the latest artist to create witty and thought-provoking pieces for the Corridor Arts project. Her exhibition, The Almost Last Hurrah, features retro clocks, vintage images and period newspaper cuttings to create quirky and often poignant pieces.

A graduate in both theatre and fine art, the former TV producer's work has a strong theatrical narrative. She describes her approach as "a comical sideways look at modern life using old, antique images".

Other artists invited to take part include commercial designer Liam Hogbin, whose Simon Cuniffe, an art teacher at Ashford's Towers School, lives in Sturry and has created images of industrial landscapes using abstract and realistic elements. Other artists and photographers have created pieces on the theme of visual illusions for an exhibition called The Bar Turned Upside Down.

All the exhibits will be on display at the theatre until early December.

TALK TIME

NEIL ARNOLD

Neil Arnold, one of Kent's leading crypto zoologists, who studies animals believed to be extinct, discusses sightings of the mysterious 'big cat' across the county

How did you get into studying big cat sightings?

It all started when I was eight or nine. I used to live near Blue Bell Hill, and got interested in some of the stories about the place. I started collecting cuttings when I was about 12 and it grew from there. Now I'm almost a full time crypto zoologist, someone who studies hard to find animals. It's more than a hobby. People call me when they've seen a big cat, or claim to have hit one in their car, so I have to know what I'm doing. I deal with a lot of nutters, but you get used to that.

Have there been any local sightings?

In Faversham the sightings are few and far between, although there have been reports of a big cat in the orchards at Brogdale, lazing about in the sun. Canterbury is a real hot spot, both Canterbury and Ashford are some of the hottest parts of the county. There are regular sightings all though the year, and there have been sheep attacks in villages around Canterbury. People think they have escaped from the zoos down there, but that's complete rubbish.

Where do they come from?

People think it's a modern thing, but it goes a lot deeper. The Romans brought thousands of exotic animals over to use in their amphitheatres, and of course some escaped. But there was no register or anything in those days, so no-one knew how many there were. This has persisted right up to Victorian times when big cats used to feature in travelling shows. Up until the 1950s it was still possible to order a leopard in Harrods, or get one through the classifieds.

Rapping on about teenage behaviour

Apropos your mystery blogger last week (Don't be too scared of our teenage werewolves, October 31).

Contrary to the author's refutations, many studies have uncovered compelling evidence to suggest what we see and hear can influence our actions.

The blogger doesn't accept there is a huge problem with children committing acts of extreme brutality. Doesn't the writer watch the news or read the papers?

There are frequent reports of teenagers murdering one another with guns and knives.

Poverty and lack of education cannot fully explain this phenomenon, otherwise it would be too risky to buy a Big Issue magazine from a homeless person or to enter the Big Brother house.

Children have easy access to gangsta rap music (50 Cent, Snoop Dogg), ultra-violent computer games (Manhunt, Grand Theft Auto) and torture movies (Hostel, Saw).

Teenage criminals have admitted to police that influences such as these contributed in some way to their behaviour.

Climate change is not to be ignored

Cllr Alex Perkins makes a very sensible point in your newspaper last week.

We should all be saddened and worried to hear Canterbury council has distanced itself from all mention of climate change and related environmental factors. It seems astonishing.

With Kent County Council, as part of their Risk Register, evaluating drought and flood, and the social consequences of such disasters, as the highest threats facing the county then it seems even more unusual.

I hope Canterbury council are able to support Alex to instigate real change in lifestyle, business, leisure, transport and education.

I'm down on my luck but not down-and-out

I write in reference to an article on page 7 of your newspaper last week (Down-and-out caught stealing 24 cans of beer).

In it I am described as a 'down-and-out'. I must object to this term. I am homeless, but this does not make me down-and-out, more down on my luck.

I was, as the article rightly states, convicted of shoplifting on October 21. However, I am sure you know court appearances are sometimes many weeks after one is charged, this being in early September. Since then, I have been working with agencies dedicated to the homeless and believe I have come a long way.

The term 'down-and-out' reinforces a negative stereotype of homeless people which a socially responsible newspaper would, I'd like to think, try to avoid. Using such degrading terminology may contribute to dehumanising homeless people.

I would appreciate it if you could make it known that I am not down-and-out. I believe I have a positive contribution to make to society and that by using such language the media is making my road to a better life much more difficult.

We're on the road to ruin, quite literally

I write in response to your article 'Money runs out for Roadworks'.

Well done for highlighting this.

I have lived in Whitstable for some years and have noticed the steady decline in the state of our roads. I recall reading in Kent on Sunday a couple of years ago that KCC had put large sums aside for roadworks. Little, if any, has been forthcoming. At the time, it blamed the hot summers for the cracking in the roads but I think your article makes it clear that a lack of funding is the real reason.

Whatever repairs have been made leave an awful patchwork effect which, in my (layman) opinion, must weaken the structure of a road. The main roads are acceptable (with the exception of Harbour Street) but some of the side roads, which are very heavily used in order to avoid traffic on the main roads, are awful.

we should be utterly ashamed of ourselves – it's barbaric beyond belief – as indeed is any experiment on any animal. If a product is to be used on a human then let it be tested on a human.

Gandhi once wrote: "The greatness of a nation and its moral progress can be judged by the way its animals are treated."

On this basis we are sadly failing.

At last some good news about animals

I really enjoyed your interview with the RSPCA's Klare Kennett (right).

It's heartening to read of an individual doing their up-most to strive towards better care and treatment of animals – and for this and indeed the RSPCA as an organisation should be applauded. You read so many horror stories revolving around cruelty that it made a refreshing change to read uplifting statistics and trends.

The words of Jeremy Bentham should be remembered: "The question is not, can they reason? Nor, can they talk? But can they suffer?"

Let's not forget these are only small increases and while we still experiment on intelligent primates

Council fines idea for stores is off its trolley

Whatever happened to personal responsibility and culpability?

I read with interest your story on how the council will fine supermarkets £85 per trolley recovered outside the boundary of the store. I'm no supermarket apologist but surely the wrong people are being targeted? Why are we not looking at persecuting the idiots who steal trolleys? A shop cannot be held responsible for their actions. We have the most CCTV coverage in the world, surely it wouldn't be too difficult to track these people? Fining companies is another case of government hand-wringing.

YOUR WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY RUSSELL GRANT

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 - Feb 19)

IF you are given a choice between working for a flat salary and earning a commission, go for the commission-based deal. Using your sex appeal to change someone's mind could ultimately tarnish your reputation. A sudden raise or bonus sweetens your bank account. This week is wonderful for starting a new job or going on interviews.

TAURUS (Apr 21 - May 21)

A LOVE interest's compliments make you feel irresistible. It will be easy to work your charm on everyone you meet. Resist the urge to take advantage of someone who wants to please you. Think twice before making a move unless you intend to pursue a serious romance. A new partnership is possible, but it needs to begin on the right foot.

LEO (July 24 - Aug 23)

WORKING behind the scenes gives you a renewed sense of confidence. Resist the urge to buy a child or lover's affection, or they will feel manipulated. An exciting romantic rendezvous could satisfy an amorous urge. Don't be afraid to explore your deepest desires. Taking a class gives you the intellectual stimulation you crave.

SCORPIO (Oct 24 - Nov 22)

THE chance to go on a trip or take a class could present itself quite suddenly - be prepared to act like lightning. Putting unusual touches on a creative project will prove rewarding. You'll have a welcome chance to pursue private pleasures for the next month, take full advantage of this blissful trend. Adopting a new look is will be good.

PISCES (Feb 20 - Mar 20)

Be aggressive about pursuing your creative vision, people will defer to you based on your experience. Your unusual style sets you apart from the crowd and opens doors. If you feel as though your employer isn't paying you enough, negotiate for better perks. Getting your boss to pay for advanced training is a distinct possibility.

GEMINI (May 22 - Jun 22)

GO ahead and make an investment in your health. If your relatives don't approve of your partner, be prepared to defend your other half or cracks could start to appear in the foundation of your relationship. An exciting award, promotion, or raise could come your way. It's a pleasure to go into work this week.

VIRGO (Aug 24 - Sep 23)

Friends encourage you to put your skills to good use. Resist the urge to pressure a relative into an arrangement that makes them uncomfortable. It's better to preserve your relationship than get your way. You could be irresistibly drawn to a love interest that isn't your usual type. If you already have a partner, encourage them to take a bold risk.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23 - Dec 21)

A CLANDESTINE encounter adds spice to your life. Don't try to charm your way out of a problem with your employer. It's best to own up and accept the consequences of a mistake. Female friends will play an increasingly important role over the next month. Look to these ladies for support with a self improvement programme.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr 20)

YOU have the courage to break through limitations that were placed on you during childhood. Now you're older, you can spend time on the things you enjoy. Mixing business with pleasure may not be possible, as a colleague with could lord it over everyone else. An exciting new phase of your love life makes difficulties at work more bearable.

CANCER (Jun 23 - Jul 23)

YOUR attractive allure is evident to everyone, allowing you to wrap someone special around your little finger. If you're already in a relationship, take this opportunity to wine and dine your amour. A little romance goes a long way. Be honest with a colleague who is performing under par. A new romance, pregnancy, or creative project could take root.

LIBRA (Sep 24 - Oct 23)

YOUR ability to spin straw into gold is a major asset in the workforce. Use a recent success to ask for a raise, promotion, or corner office. An unusual job assignment could put more money in your pocket. Your charm, wit, and sophistication will be at an all time high for the next month; use these gifts to advance your agenda.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 - Jan 20)

PURSuing an intimate relationship pays off handsomely. Don't be afraid to play the aggressor. It feels good to go after what you want. An exciting piece of news prompts you to pursue a cherished dream. Work assumes a more glamorous tone over the next month. A group of intensely creative people could make their way into your life.

African bike adventure goes a long way down

■ BY ANDY WELCH

EVEN though Ewan McGregor and Charley Boorman have just ridden from the tip of Scotland to the southern-most point of Africa across some of the most hazardous terrain on the planet, they can't afford to take time off to relax.

"It's been extremely busy since we got back," says Ewan. "There's an awful lot of stuff you have to deal with after three months away. And we could have gone on longer. When we got to Cape Town at the end of the trip there was a terrible temptation to just turn around and go back up. I didn't want to stop."

The draw of their families, which both admit to missing horrendously, was enough to see that they returned, but not before a quick trip to Kenya with their wives and children to revisit a few of their favourite spots.

The duo completed their first mammoth trip around three years ago, and their travels could be seen in Long Way Round, their first series for the BBC. On their motorcycles, and followed by a small support crew, Ewan and Charley rode from London to New York, but as the title of their escapade suggests, they didn't merely cross the Atlantic to get to the Big Apple. Instead, they rode through France, Belgium, Germany, Czech Republic, Slovakia, Ukraine, Russia, Kazakhstan, Mongolia and Canada before finally reaching their destination.

It was a gruelling trip, but not tough enough to put them off trying something else. The actors, who became best friends after meeting on the set of 1997 film The Serpent's Kiss, originally mentioned the possibility of another journey on Jonathan Ross's chat show some time ago, but it only came to fruition this year. And two shows into the six-part series – Long Way Down – viewers are hooked again.

ON YER BIKE: Charley Boorman and Ewan McGregor rode from Scotland to the southern tip of Africa

"The preparations were much smoother this time," says Ewan, looking nothing like a film star in workman's boots, jeans and a fleecy jacket. "We knew what we wanted to take and what we didn't want to take, and we knew we wanted to go on the BMW bikes."

If preparations were smoother, the trip was more difficult than their previous effort which introduced thousands to adventure biking.

"It was definitely different," ponders Ewan. "Because we'd done Long Way Round, we were all looking for unique things and sometimes that was conflicting. It caused some moments that weren't as harmonious as others. That's a nice way of putting it, isn't it?" he beams with a trademark smile.

"I think if you spend that much time together," adds Charley, "you know, you're bound to have the odd bicker. You'd be spectacularly odd if you didn't. But we'd get time on our own when we were riding."

The journey this time around had Ewan and Charley riding down through the UK, across France and through the Alps into Italy. From there, they crossed to Tunisia and began the mammoth African leg of their journey which would have them visiting Libya, Egypt, Sudan, Ethiopia, Kenya, Uganda, Rwanda, Tanzania, Malawi, Zambia, Namibia and Botswana, before finally making their way to Cape Agulhas, the southern-most point of the continent. So, what did Africa have in store?

"People would hear we were going there and say 'Of course, you'll be macheted'. I'd ask whereabouts, and they'd say, 'Everywhere'," laughs Ewan.

Many readers may already know a fair bit about Charley and Ewan's trip thanks to the website which they regularly contributed to using the latest satellite technology.

"Next time, if there is a next time," adds Charley quickly, considering the implications of what he's just said. "If there were enough people saying 'You should go and do this', we could go off and do it."

Next time?

"We've only just got back!"

Of cowboys and astronauts

■ BY EMMA ROWLEY

WHERE have all the cowboys gone? Almost certainly to Texas, that most American of states, where even city-dwellers go about hatted and booted – as though they are more likely to ride a horse than a pick-up truck.

When you arrive on George Bush's home patch, you quickly find that the state's lone star flag is as common a sight as the stars and stripes, fluttering from anywhere possible.

To understand where the famous Texan pride comes from, a visit to The Alamo in San Antonio is the obvious place to start. Texans take their history very seriously. It was here, at a former chapel, that a motley band of vastly outnumbered rebels fought to the death against the Mexican army to safeguard their independence.

Not all the stereotypes hold true, though. Forget the desert scenes from cowboy films – Texas is a surprisingly lush state, and its cities are spacious and green. In addition to its cowboy roots, modern Texas is rather proud to have a cultured side.

The McNay Art Museum in San Antonio is the former home of Marion Koogler McNay, who built up a fabulous collection of art. Her legacy is breathtaking: a Spanish-influenced mansion where each room is packed with Renoirs, Monets and Picassos.

CITY: The Texas skyline is strikingly different to the stereotypical image of George Bush's home state

Another San Antonio highlight is a boat ride through the city. The river is banked by bars and restaurants, many of which are happy to arrange a meal for you onboard your barge.

We were served a summery menu by Hotel Contessa and serenaded by a mariachi band. Indeed the Mexican influence on the city, as for much of Texas, is marked, noticeably in the food: delicious tacos, tortillas and burritos are served up in abundance. Throughout the state the food is plentiful, tasty and cheap – which may explain many Texans' waistlines.

From San Antonio we went to Austin, a relatively short drive, made worthwhile by stopping at the tiny outpost that is Luckenbach. It boasts a wooden cabin general store/post office, where musicians play in the back to passers-by. It's the only stop you need make to experience the best of rural Texas.

Houston could not be more different. Everything is bigger in Texas – and nowhere is that more evident than in this city, the focus of the Texan oil industry. According to one city-dweller, Houston sprawls across 70 miles: this is a city built for the car.

Houston also boasts a thriving museum district, ranging from the vast Houston Museum of Natural Science, which has its own butterfly house, to The Buffalo Soldiers National Museum, which uses actors to tell the history of the legendary all-black regiments, from their civil war beginnings to desegregation.

More recent history comes in the form of NASA's Johnson Space Center. For me, the highlight was stepping into the control centre that received the famous and chilling call: "Houston, we have a problem". It still houses the computers used to bring home the astronauts on the Apollo 13 mission. Looking at the clunky machines, it seems a miracle they ever made it into space, let alone came home again.

From ranch settlers to space explorers, it seems Texas still retains that pioneering spirit.

DEAD: Robert Haines was shot during Romney raid

PRISON: Dean Jenkins was jailed for 17 years

PRISON: Ben Grehan was jailed for 12 years

PRISON: David Jenkins was jailed for 10 years

■ BY NICK AMES

THE three robbers who saw the fourth member of their gang shot dead by police have all been handed hefty jail sentences for a series of raids on security vans.

They were arrested almost exactly a year ago after they were caught by waiting armed officers in New Romney High Street.

Bob Haines, 41, a bouncer from Challock, opened fire with his sawn-off shotgun and he was immediately brought down by a police marksman.

The other three were arrested and quickly linked to a series of raids across the county.

All of the raids were carried out by ambushing security vans delivering large quantities of cash to building societies in Strood, Paddock Wood, Birchington, New Romney and Herne Bay.

Balaclava

In total, the robberies netted almost £340,000.

On Friday, David Jenkins, 61, a maintenance manager from Ashford, was found not guilty of the firearms offence but guilty of robbery and he was sentenced to 10 years.

His accomplices, who had already admitted conspiracy to commit armed robbery, were jailed as well.

Dean Jenkins, 40, a company director from Rainham, was sentenced to 17 years, and Ben Grehan, 22, a scaffolder from south London, to 12 years.

Each robbery was committed at night and at the moment when the last cash was being delivered.

In every case a man appeared

Three jail sentences and a funeral for 'ruthless' gang wearing a balaclava and dark clothes and carrying a sawn-off shotgun which he used to threaten guards and order them to hand over cash.

Judge Philip Statman said the robberies were "ruthless" and commended both Kent police and members of the Metropolitan Police Flying Squad for their part in bringing the offenders to justice.

Detective Chief Inspector Tim Smith, who led the investigation, said: "The incidents involved innocent people being threatened and in some cases violence was used against them, resulting in, without a doubt, them being in fear of their lives."

"This disregard for others and the seriousness of the crime has been reflected by the sentences imposed."

"We have worked together with the Crown Prosecution Service to take these dangerous men off the streets of Kent. Kent police will deal with armed robberies robustly and thoroughly, and offenders will be brought before the courts."

Detective Chief Inspector Steve Richardson from the Flying

Squad added: "These three men played significant roles in a series of violent armed robberies, where guns were used to intimidate guards."

"The robbery of cash in transit companies is not a victimless crime, with the delivery guards often suffering physically and physiologically."

"The Flying Squad will continue to work with the industry and other forces to prevent and apprehend robbers of this nature."

DEATH AT A FUNERAL (15)

A dignified send-off for a loved one erupts into chaos when romance, jealousy, in-laws, secrets and a spot of blackmail collide at the graveside – and a divided family is finally forced to come to terms with each other's bad behaviour. The British cast stars Matthew MacFadyen, Rupert Graves, Jane Asher, Daisy Donovan and Ewen Bremner.

30 DAYS OF NIGHT (15)

In the sleepy and secluded town of Barrow, Alaska, the citizens are preparing for the annual coming of the dark, when the sun will set for more than 30 consecutive days and nights. But this year the dark will bring something else. From across the frosted wasteland, a horrifying evil descends upon Barrow, mercilessly besieging its terrified residents.

THE LOOKOUT (15)

Chris (Joseph Gordon-Levitt) is a once-promising high school athlete whose life is turned upside down following a tragic accident. As he tries to maintain a normal life, he takes a job as a janitor at a bank, where he finds himself caught up in a planned heist.

Cate's age of confrontation

■ BY SHEREEN LOW

WITH her regal stature and ethereal beauty, Cate Blanchett was born to play a queen.

The Australian actress has reprised her award-winning role as Queen Elizabeth I in Elizabeth: The Golden Age almost 10 years since her high-profile debut in Elizabeth.

Dressed in a black sequined top and wide-legged black trousers, Cate reveals why it has taken so long for the film to be made.

"The structure to this film is quite different," she says, "I wasn't ready for a long time, but they came back with a really interesting script, at the centre of which was a woman who was coming to terms with the fact she was ageing. This is unlike the last time where there was a boy meets girl story and a love triangle."

"I needed to get older, otherwise there's no real story. While the first film was about denial – a woman denying herself in order to rule – this was more about acceptance, and a woman who was having to confront the fact that she was ageing and what that meant."

"It's pertinent to both women and men, that whole fear of ageing which was a huge issue for Elizabeth."

Cate, who was also crowned elf queen Galadriel in the Lord Of The Rings trilogy, has a great admiration for the first Queen Elizabeth.

She says: "I find her incredibly inspiring. She had an amazing intellect and an ability to work her way through uncharted waters while negotiating a minefield of political associations and still keeping everything afloat."

"She was also an incredible patron of the arts, which I find utterly inspiring. The poetry of the time, the music, the literature, the birth of English theatre, Shakespeare is all there in a large part, I think, due to her patronage."

She adds, more poignantly: "When making the film we thought a lot about Diana, Princess of Wales."

"Although we don't know how much is propaganda, one of the things that is repeatedly written about Elizabeth is that she often went out with very little guard and walked around and shook people's hands. So she was able to somehow be untouchable and remote, and also incredibly accessible."

"We were reminded of Diana in terms capturing the public's imaginations and that public feeling that they could connect."

Cate, a mother-of-two, who has been married to Australian playwright and screenwriter Andrew Upton for almost 10 years, said playing the role made her grateful for her own family life and relationships.

MAJESTIC: Cate Blanchett's graceful beauty and imposing stature makes her perfect for the role of a queen

"I wouldn't like to be as isolated as she was. I'm lucky I've got a private life that happily and richly balances my work life."

The actress prefers to stay out of the spotlight so she can bring up her two sons – six-year-old Dashiell and three-year-old Roman.

But Cate, who is also starring in the fourth installment of the Indiana Jones franchise – Indiana Jones And The Kingdom Of The Crystal Skull – as well as playing a younger version of music icon Bob Dylan in I'm Not There, isn't sure about completing the Elizabeth trilogy.

"Who knows? We'll have to see how this one does, I think," she says.

PROPERTY NEWS

Full speed ahead for regeneration

REGENERATION of the Wincheap estate is to be at the forefront of Canterbury council's development plans, according to the recent Kent Property Market Report 2007 – by Kent County Council, Cluttons and Locate in Kent.

The council has appointed Capital and Counties as its development partner. It is currently consulting with the local community about their vision for the site. Proposals for the area will focus on retail, housing, hotel, business, leisure, recreation and provision of open space as well as improving connections to the city centre and A28. Preparation is also under way by Network Rail to make Canterbury West station ready for the launch of fast train services in 2009.

The report goes on to list other proposed regeneration sites including the King's Mile enhancement project covering Palace Street, Guildhall Street and Sun Yard.

Canterbury council has also consulted on development options for Herne Bay. Proposals are expected for a mixed-use retail and residential development, major improvements to the town's Memorial Park and better connections between the seafront, the town, the park and the station.

Are we taking any notice of HIPs?

ONLY 10 per cent of people read HIPs, according to research carried out by Spicerhaart's, Europe's largest independent estate agency.

Paul Broadhead, deputy director general at the Association of Home Information Pack Providers (AHIPP), said: "As far as AHIPP is concerned, it is too early to make any firm conclusions about the way consumers use HIPs as we are only half way through the rollout of HIPs into the market since August 1.

"Consumers are not, not reading HIPs out of choice – they are simply not being advised that a HIP is available in a large number of cases.

"Buyers are not being given a HIP automatically, instead they are having to request it specifically from the estate agent – so this figure does not surprise me.

"We have just issued an updated version of our HIP handling guide which states that once estate agents receive the HIP it should be made available to buyers immediately for their information."

It's time to invest in the rental market

■ BY JENNY SANTOS

At a time of uncertainty in the housing market, letting agents across Kent are reporting a shortage of rental properties.

The Association of Rental Lettings Agents (ARLA) released a recent report stating that tenant demand now outstrips supply in all sectors of the rental market.

ARLA says this is consistent with the traditional pattern of 'softening' house prices leading to a growing requirement for rental accommodation.

Philip Curtiss of Caxtons, letting agents in Canterbury, said: "Demand for one and two bedroom accommodation is very high. In Canterbury we have a good number of new build, which should meet this demand but prices might be too high for the large student market here."

So, despite widespread speculation of a decline in the buy-to-let market, industry experts are advising potential investors now is a good time to buy.

Property investment specialist, Assetz, sees the current climate as a good opportunity for investors.

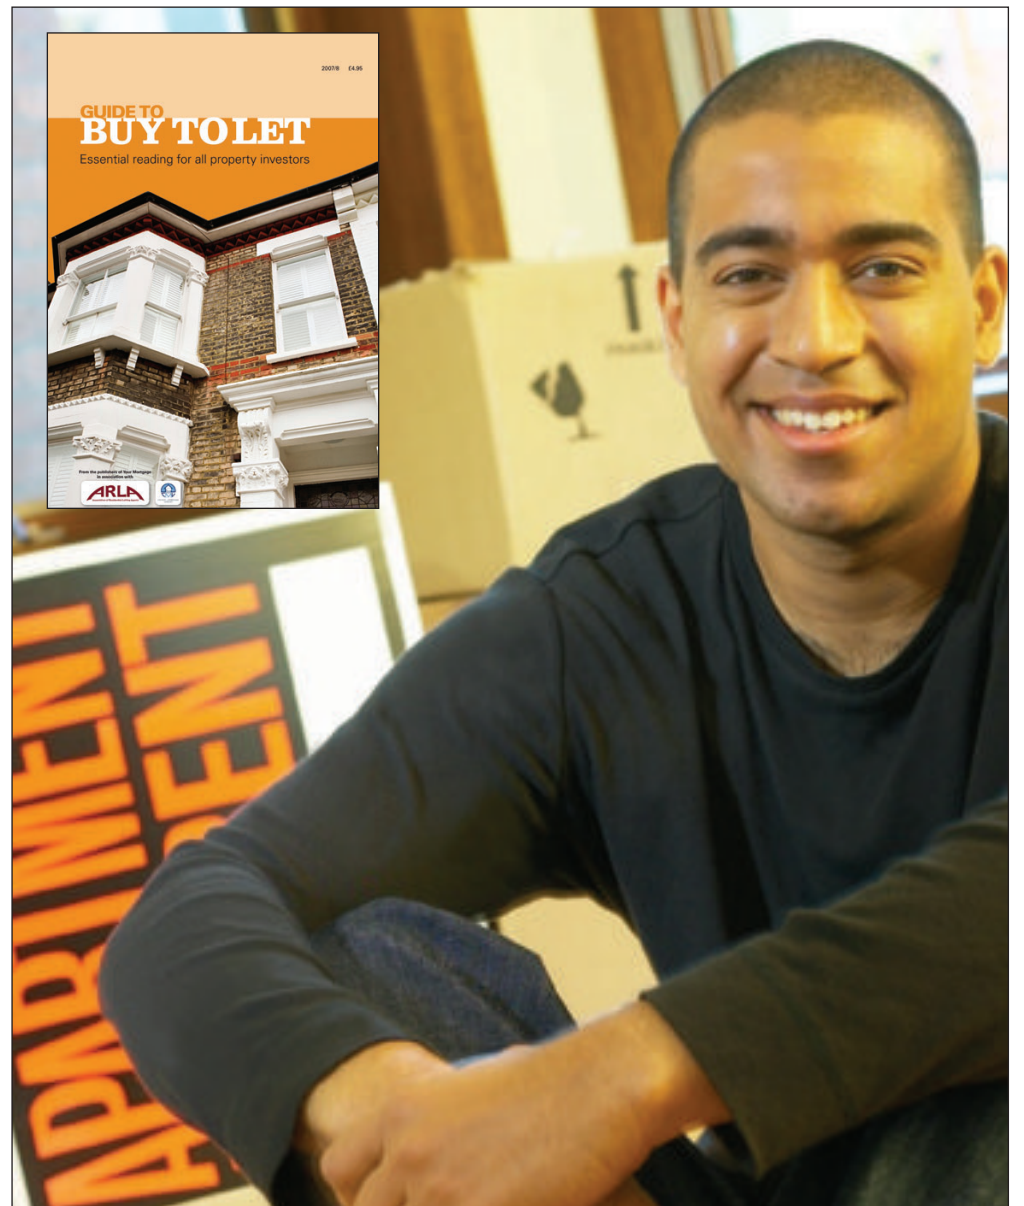

Stuart Law, chief executive, said: "Whilst the market has been subject to much speculation and turmoil over the last few months, there is significant evidence to suggest that for those taking a medium to long term perspective, now is a good time to invest in buy-to-let."

According to ARLA's last quarterly figures, the average weekly rental income for the South East is £345-a-week for houses and £215-a-week for flats, putting rents at an all time high. It is predicted the growth in rents will continue.

Coupled with an increasing number of forced sellers discounting their property and bank base rates expected to reduce, we could be approaching the most profitable rental income situation for years.

ARLA has just published its annual guide – The ARLA, CML Guide to Buy to Let – in association with the Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML).

Malcolm Harrison, ARLA spokesperson, said the aim of the guide is to "clarify the role of investment in residential rental housing and counter any market misunderstandings".

GUIDE: As demand outstrips supply, a new report says this could be the ideal time to buy-to-let

For landlords and tenants, it covers the definition of buy-to-let, the opportunities and obligations that go with it, tenancy agreements, tenancy deposit protection, insurance, legal requirements and tax. A useful resource for all considering dipping a tentative toe into the rental property market.

The guide can be picked up at ARLA registered letting agents and downloaded from www.arla.co.uk

MOTORS NEWS

Big discount makes a massive deal on Micra

BAILEYS Nissan in Canterbury is highlighting an £800 discount for the revised 2008 model Micra hatchback until December 14.

The deal on the mid-level Acenta brings Bluetooth phone integration, drive computer, speed limit warning, air-conditioning, six-speaker CD system with MP3 jack socket, rear sliding seat, electric door mirrors and front windows.

With the discount, this cuts the price for this well-equipped model to just £7,995.

Baileys' dealer principal Brian Smith said: "The Nissan Micra offers incredible specification at amazing value."

Local reflection on record 'Landie' sales

LAND ROVER sales have hit all-time record levels globally and the local news is good too says Barretts Land Rover at Canterbury and Ashford.

Dealer principal Mark Nicholas said: "Our sales are up five to 10 per cent on 2006 according to model. The Discovery 3 is now our oldest car, but keeps winning awards, while demand for the Range Rover Sport and new Defender is strong. The latest Freelander is our best seller though – its predecessor was good, but the new car is a huge step forward."

Mazda6 is voted used car of the year 2007

MAZDA launches an all-new and more premium Mazda6 into the family car/executive saloon sector soon, after a reminder of its (pictured) predecessor's strengths.

It has just been judged Used Car of The Year 2007 by What Car? magazine, beating more than 3,000.

What Car? used car editor Matt Sanger said the winner was "A great combination of value, reliability and desirability, alongside its fine handling and driving abilities."

dles it in style. Handling and grip is also exemplary due to the lowered and stiffened 'Cup Chassis', now available as an option on the 'standard' Renaultsport 197.

Even more amazing is that this impressive chassis does not have the obvious downside of a teeth jarring ride.

The car's close-ratio six-speed 'box is slick enough for spirited driving, accompanied by a great soundtrack as you flick up and down; track day fans will love the fact that electronic stability control can be switched off for ultimate fun and games.

It might feel a bit wearing on the motorway home though; the close-set gearing means that even top doesn't free you from the throaty grumble of that engine.

For a car costing more than £17,000 there is also still evidence of links with cheaper versions of the Clio, even though the fit and finish of the current range is superior to the past and also brings roominess and practicality.

On the other hand you do get those Recaro seats, plus alloy pedals and chunky leather-clad wheel. No, Renault won't struggle to sell 500 F1s.

USED CAR ROUND-UP: OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

COMPACT EXECUTIVE SALOONS

GERMAN marques dominate the compact executive saloon market – BMW's 3-Series is a top-10 seller in the UK. But there are good desirable and affordable alternatives for used car buyers seeking a little extra class and comfort without 'going German'. Opt for models that have the most extra goodies on them, because the premium you pay for these will be far less than the original private or company buyer had paid; you could get sat nav and leather, for instance for a few hundred pounds rather than several thousand.

LEXUS IS200

TOYOTA'S luxury arm used the BMW 3-Series as a benchmark for its first compact exec and hit the mark for style, value and driver appeal, but sales were hamstrung by the lack of a diesel. The IS200 also felt underpowered, but was juicy, while the rarer IS300 had the grunt, but was even thirstier. That said the IS-Series makes a great used buy with lots of kit and presence, while the second generation car is still rare on the used market.

JAGUAR X-TYPE

THIS brave attempt to attack dominant German models was affected by taunts that it was a re-worked Ford Mondeo. But this has proved unfair when the X-Type handles so well in both front and four-wheel drive formats. It is also affordable and has built a reputation for reliability, comfort and driver appeal. There is even an estate that is attractive and practical though it does command a premium second-hand. Best of all, there are two quality diesel options.

SAAB 9-3

THERE is a lot of Vauxhall underneath the Saab, but nothing wrong with that in terms of reliability and durability, especially when clothed by a low slung slinky body that deserves the 9-3's 'Sport Saloon' tag. Where the Swede has also scored is with a line-up of sporty yet frugal diesels. For used car buyers, prices should also become more attractive for older examples following a recent radical 9-3 facelift that will become increasingly common on the road.

As a member of the Human Resources department, the job holder will co-ordinate recruitment and induction activity for MAF

UK, supporting in the provision of staff and volunteers for UK-based and overseas-based roles.

We are seeking someone who is able to work independently or within a team environment, but in an integrated way, supporting the objectives of MAF UK. If you are organised and efficient, with good interpersonal skills and a friendly manner, we would be delighted to hear from you.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Invest in skills time for leisure and tourism

A SERIES of free one-day training courses are being offered to leisure and tourism businesses.

Courses include management, communication and e-business training and will be held in the workplace or venue.

Fran Warrington, head of Kent Tourism, which is organising the sessions, said: "For a relatively small investment of time, tourism industry staff can gain valuable new skills and abilities which they can put to work immediately."

Ten participants are needed for each course. Where a company can not commit this number of staff, there is a possibility of combining with other businesses.

Call Kent Tourism on 01622 696936.

Sick figures for work days lost in South East

THE Health and Safety Commission say 4.8million working days have been lost in the South East during 2006-7 due to workplace injury and ill-health.

Statistics published by the HSC also reveal there were 35 fatal injuries to workers, 3,484 reported major injuries to employees, and 12,880 cases of ill health to employees, which led to more than three days off work.

Overall, the statistics show a 0.37 per cent decrease in injuries in the South East over the past year, compared to a four per cent decline in the UK as a whole.

The report showed the construction industry was the most hazardous area of work.

Successful cash payouts for company tax claims

INNOVATIVE science and technology companies in Kent have received a share of £51.5million in cash payments from HM Revenue & Customs' specialist Research & Development Unit (R&D), in the last year.

The Maidstone unit, which covers: Kent, Sussex and parts of Essex and London, has dealt with almost 1,000 claims in the last year with the figures published on the unit's first anniversary.

Further info on the HMRC's new specialist R&D tax credits units is available online at: www.hmrc.gov.uk/randd/special-units.htm.

Business leaders' desire to play active part in the community

SURVEY: Aimed to get to the heart of needs of local business to help them thrive

BUSINESSES should be at the heart of every community in Kent, according to a new survey.

Eighty-four per cent of business leaders across the county felt they should play an active part in schools and community projects.

The heads of more than 200 organisations and companies, including chambers of commerce, professional bodies and trade organisations, took part in the study carried out by the South East of England Development Agency.

Forty-seven per cent of company chiefs in Kent felt business prospects for the next six months look the same as the last half year, but 23 per cent said the outlook was better.

Disturbingly, 22 per cent of those quizzed felt the forecast was bleak.

Only 32 per cent of business leaders said

■ BY JON COATES

Kent was a good place to invest or run a successful organisation, while 41 per cent thought it was average.

The study also asked what the main factors enabling companies in the county to thrive and grow are.

Twenty-five per cent said it was customer focus, 19 per cent pointed to exporting and international trade, while 14 per cent rated creativity and innovation, and sales and marketing.

The survey also found that 40 per cent of those quizzed felt it was feasible to reduce the carbon footprint of businesses, while 26 per cent argued it was not.

The local factors which affects business growth were named as bad transport, by 26 per cent; drugs, drink and violence, by 15 per cent; and expensive or scarce housing, by 15 per cent.

SEEDA carried out the survey as part of its last call for entries for its first South East Business Awards.

Jeff Alexander, executive director of SEEDA's global competitiveness division, said: "We aim to get to the heart of the needs of our local business communities and this research highlights the factors that make a thriving environment and pinpoint areas for development."

"That is why the South East Business Awards will showcase outstanding business achievements so far."

Companies can apply for the awards at www.southeastbusinessawards.co.uk. Closing date for applications is November 28 and winners will be announced on March 6.

Canterbury end Lydney's streak

A SUPERB team performance saw Canterbury RFC become only the second team to win at Lydney in two-and-a-half years.

The home side got off to a fast start, scoring two converted tries in the first 10 minutes, but two tries from Michael Melford and another from Miles Littlechild set up a 36-20 victory.

Fly-half Sam Rasch had a flawless afternoon with the boot, kicking three conversions, four penalties and a drop goal.

The win kept Canterbury in contention in National League 3 South's top four.

This Saturday, the team host struggling Luton, kick-off 2.30pm.

Paul Scally unveils Mark Stimson as the new Gillingham manager

Five-star display from new boys

CANTERBURY City extended their unbeaten run to 11 games with a 5-1 win away at Lanes End.

After early pressure from the hosts, Lee Austin gave City the lead with a well-taken goal.

The strike settled Canterbury, who went on to dominate the match.

Dan Bonneywell made it two before Wayne Fittall got his 11th goal of the league campaign after an hour.

Lanes End pulled one back, but Sam Baker and Chris Williams scored in the dying minutes to give City another big win.

The result put the newly-formed side nine points clear at the top of the British Energy Kent County League.

In recognition of the team's excellent start to the season, manager Dave Fairclough was named the division's manager-of-the-month.

City can make it 12 games without defeat when they play Saga Sports & Social at Bridge Recreation Ground this Saturday.

BACK WITH A WIN: Canterbury (in white) ended a six-game losing streak and won their first game of the season, beating Bowdon at home on Saturday

City take a Bow after first win in six games

CANTERBURY ended a run of six consecutive defeats with a win which lifted them off the bottom of the Men's Premier Division.

Matt Harper and Andrew Dunn scored second-half goals to win a nerve-fraying match and leapfrog above Bowdon in the league.

Manager David Stephens said it was a vital win for the home side, considering both clubs' proximity to the relegation zone.

He said: "When you have lost six-out-of-six and you play the team above you at home, it is huge. If Bowdon had won they would have been six points ahead of us, so it was very important."

"We have conceded a few goals in the last few weeks, so we were concentrating on keeping it tight at the back."

"A defensive focus was the right thing to do, we had to make sure we didn't concede and be patient, and that basic plan worked out."

Predictably, with both teams sat in the league's basement, confidence was at a minimum and the first half was a cagey affair, with neither side committing too many men to attack.

Bowdon almost took a lead into the break, but Adrian Kimber made a fantastic diving save to keep the scores level.

The game looked to be heading for a stalemate until Harper went through one-on-one with the goalkeeper in the 59th minute. His shot was not well struck but found its way past the on-rushing keeper and into the goal.

Canterbury were reduced to 10 men when Rob Pryce was harshly sent off for dissent, but instead of protecting their lead, they extended it.

Defender Dunn found himself in an attacking position to score a surprise goal and seal a crucial first victory of the campaign.

Even when they were a man down, their manager had faith the team could break their duck.

Stephens said: "I think the guys were pretty confident that as long as we could keep a clean sheet we could come out and win the game. We had a fair amount of belief that we could do it."

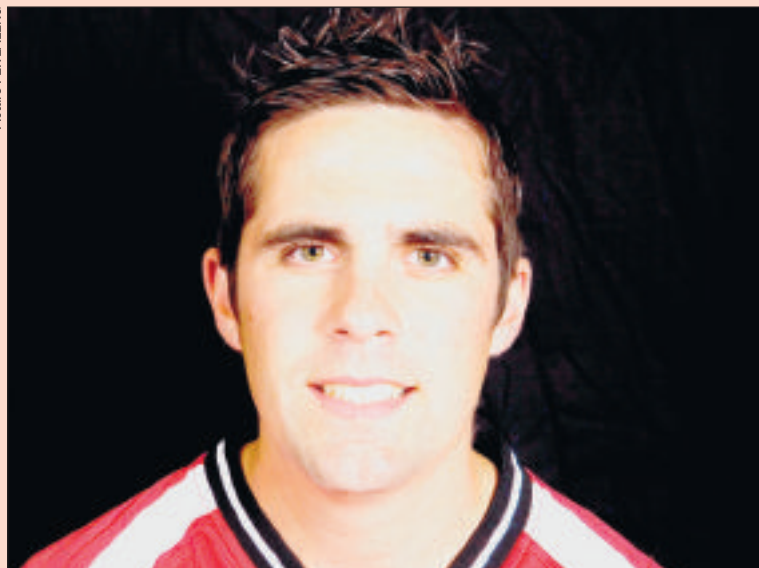

"I thought our defensive shape was strong and we held it well. We just had to get through being down to ten men and are really pleased with the win."

The team have difficult away games against early season pace setters Beeston and Reading, but Stephens is confident his side can build on the victory.

He said: "They are tough games, no doubt about it, but the nature of the league this season is that we still think we can pick up points against anybody."

The ladies' team lost 2-0 away at in-form Slough, as their winless run stretched to four games. Canterbury held the hosts until the second half, when strikes from Purdy Miller and Jane Smith won the game.

FREE-KICK: Tommy Martin scored during Whitstable's defeat against Whyteleafe

We'll avoid drop, says Seager

WHITSTABLE Town manager Marc Seager is confident his newly-promoted side can survive in Ryman Division One South this season, despite having a small budget.

In the absence of the injured Rob Thomas, the Oystermen's defensive frailties were exposed by a decent Whyteleafe side, five days after conceding three goals at Ashford Town.

Seager said: "We knew it was going to be a hard week, Whyteleafe are flying this season. Our main aim is to still be a Ryman club come the end of the season and I will put my cards on the table and say we will."

"I'm not happy about the defence and I'm trying hard to bring someone in, but we have a very small budget and every club I have approached to get someone in on loan has wanted big money.

"There is nothing I can do about it. I am not going to knock the club – they have not got the money. I appreciate their attitude because they are not going to put themselves in debt."

Whyteleafe made the most of Town's defensive errors to surge into a two goal lead in the first half, but a Tommy Martin free-kick reduced the deficit just before the break.

The home side went two goals ahead early in the second half but John Akinde got Whitstable back in the game on 65 minutes. The on-loan striker showed his class as he grabbed his fourth goal in five games.

The visitors had the momentum and looked set to go on and take a point, but Whyteleafe scored a well-taken fourth goal to end any hope of a comeback.

Cup Crusade ends for visitors

SPIRITED: Kent Crusaders crash out of the cup competition against champs

KENT Crusaders put on a spirited display but crashed out of the National Cup against last season's Division One champions on Sunday night.

With injuries and both captain Pete Ayling and star player Robbie Parker unavailable, the visitors only had nine players for the trip to the south coast.

Crusaders coach Mads Olesen felt the score failed to reflect the balance of the game and said he was satisfied with the way his side performed against an unbeaten Thunder side.

He said: "We played a very decent game for two-and-a-half quarters.

"At the start we didn't really believe that we could play with their guys. Twice we got the gap down to 17 points but then Worthing went up a gear.

"We had an upset for the taking but we just didn't take that chance."

It was double disappointment for the Crusaders as they lost their first league game of the season 24 hours earlier.

They went down 77-66 to Leicester Warriors, mostly due to a terrible first period, where they trailed 28-4.

Crusaders recovered to play well for the rest of the match but left themselves too much to do. The game might have been closer had the team scored more foul shots, but they could only convert seven out of 17.

Olesen said: "The Leicester game was very encouraging in the way that the 11 guys playing found out they can play very good basketball when they want to – they had to step up and they really did.

"We'll go home and work hard on keeping our intensity up for 40 minutes and focus on our defence."

EQUALISER: Herne Bay (in blue) failed to end their five-match winless streak after a Greenwich equaliser evened the score at Winch's Field

Bay hit by mean Greenwich strike

HERNE Bay conceded a late equaliser to extend their winless run to five games in a disjointed match at Winch's Field.

Aaron Firth's first-half wonder goal was cancelled out with five minutes remaining to leave Bay third in Group A of the Premier Division Cup.

In a frustrating afternoon, neither side were able to build any momentum with the teams getting bogged down in a congested midfield.

The goalkeepers were completely untroubled for most of the first half until Firth lit up the match with his eighth goal of the season.

The striker was upset with the strong tactics used by the Greenwich defenders and the lack of protection from the referee. He was booked for dissent but within a minute he responded by lobbing the goalkeeper from 35-yards.

Jack Delo made two excellent saves in the Bay goal to keep the home side in front after the break, but they could not hold out.

On 85 minutes, Greenwich's creative midfielder Peter Smith flicked the ball into the net after a goalmouth scramble to share the points.

Bay were unhappy with the referee, who booked five players for dissent but allowed several dangerous-looking lunges.

The draw kept the hosts in contention to qualify from Group A with two games remaining.

Bay travel to play Hythe Town tonight in the Kent Premier League, looking to end a run of three draws and two defeats since beating Tunbridge Wells on October 13.

A win could take Jason Lillis' side up to seventh in the table.

Rugby players leave it too late to fight back

A BRAVE second-half display by a weakened Whitstable team was not quite enough away to Beccehamian, as they lost 17-10.

Whitstable gave themselves a mountain to climb by conceding two tries in the first 20 minutes as the hosts piled on the pressure.

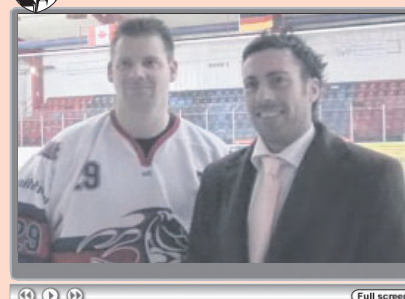

The Blues fought back in the second half with a fine penalty from Rob Dengate and an excellent try by Mark Bissett.

Dengate converted from the touchline, but the visitors could not find another score.
